DAILY GAZETTE.
The Siege of Vicksburg.
We find in the St. Louis Democrat a letter from a gentleman just returned from Vicksburg, which conveys as vivid an idea of the situation as anything that we have seen. We will therefore extract largely:
WHY GRANT HAS NOT TAKEN VICKSBURG.
I have been astonished since my return to hear persons complaining that Grant is doing nothing. They seem to imagine that Vicksburg is to come down like Jericho, at a flourish of trumpets. The truth is, the army could hardly be more active or on the qui vive. On the 22d of May, in order to silence the cry, Grant hurried the whole column of the army upon those breastworks, and it broke as the surge breaks on the rock. The army has now simply changed its tactics. It has for the time dropped the bayonet and taken up the spade. In the double gloom of the night and the mine, the army is creeping stealth-ily forward. A few evenings since, in company with an officer of Gen. Benton's staff, I threaded the length of one of these approaches. From previous accounts I had imagined them like those of Leyden,
as deep caverns where foes half embowed
grappled in the subterranean darkness.—
In these anticipations I was disappointed.
The famous mine of fancy and of rumor,
turned out to be simply a trench, covered with cross pieces and earth, in plain view from the enemy, and simply answering as a protection against muskets and cannon of small calibre. It was not designed as a secret bed of gunpowder, but as a simple approach to the enemy's works.

Such was the character of the mine which I explored. Possibly the others may be different in formation and design. Those who imagine that we are digging into the very vitals of Vicksburg, and propose to blow that village to the four winds, with a grand display of mechanic force and pyrotechnics, and a sublime tragedy like the plot of Guy Fawkes, will doubtless be disgusted at this matter-of-fact elucidation of the subject. They will cry McCrellan and Richmond over again. Nevertheless, simply as a series of approaches, which tighten in the embrace of the Union army around Vicksburg, I have great confidence them.
As anything else, I should have very little confidence.

THE STRENGTH OF THE FORTIFICATIONS
AROUND VICKSBURG.
It was supposed when the army was advancing from the "Big Black," that we had
at last got upon a weak side of the city,
where the confederate general never dreamed that the Lincoln soldiers would ever advance. Information picked up by the way tended to strengthen this impression.
I was so well persuaded of such a state of affairs that I hurried forward from the north from Bridgeport, when they entered the city. But after a careful reconnaissance of the work one of our generals assured me that he would prefer to storm Vicksburg from the river. Nothing could be more elaborate than the defenses upon the east. To the north of the city, where it was expected that they would be most strongly entrenched, we found the rebels on the morning after our arrival busy as beavers constructing a line of earthworks. After a heavy cannonade by Landgraves' battery and others, they were dislodged, and Gen. Steele was enabled to advance a half a mile or so nearer. Opposite Mc-Clelland the rebels have hardly turned a spade full of earth, except to repair during the night breaches made by our 30-pounder Parrots during the day.

The line of fortifications are constructed after the most approved system of military engineering. It describes a zig zag course —to illustrate by a rude figure, like that of a worm fence. The sides of the retreating angle are simply strong rifle pits, but they completely enfilade each other, besides affording a flanking fire from the heavy guns which man the fortifications. These bat-tions stand the apex of every salient angle, which is naturally the weak point, and are of the most formidable description.—
One in particular, of great size, and opposite McPherson, which I understand is called Fort Vicksburg, is in a place apparently from fifteen to twenty feet high, and nearly perpendicular.
The canon which man them are of heavy calibre, but not as numerous as the river batteries. The great guns which poured their death storm into our scudding bottles of transports, such as the far famed "Whistling Dick," at ad omnia genus, are not so mounted as to be moved, and are most of them still in their old position.
And it is well known that of not far from 99 field pieces, composing pretty much all their available artillery, which Pemberton moved out to confront us inland, 74 were captured. Still several new guns have been mounted and opened fire upon us since the siege began, but not in numbers sufficient to render them exceedingly formidable.
The great strength of the redoubts lies in their internal construction. The Fortiori Hopes of the 22d ascertained, to their cost,
that after running the gauntlet of murderous volleys from the rifle pits, and actually scaling the rebel earthworks, they were still a long way from victory. Instead of being masters of an apparently deserted fort, they found themselves exposed to a fire from rifle pits, running from front to rear, pour in a cross-fire upon troops entering by the corner of the redoubt, and after dialoging the enemy from the whole interior they were shot down from an ambuscade behind another line of rifle pits which, instead of the usual curtain, forms the rear of the fort.
More than one of these intrenched works were actually scaled, but the interior, so far from being an asylum for the assailants, proved to be a chamber, to which the open ground outside, swept as it was by constant volleys, was preferable.

This brief description will give some faint idea of the strength of this American Ses-topol. The ill-fated Boomer was wise when he said to his officers, with the earnestness of a dying man, "Don't charge those works!" There were precipitous batteries, forts, mounds, from six to eight feet deep, angles of enfilading rifle pits, and 16,000 desperate soldiers to dispute our progress. It is true that since the action is fairly over, it appears that the ATTACK OF THE 22d ULT.
might have been better arranged. Gen.
Grant presumed too much on the heroic action of the victors of Black River, and estimated too lightly both the strength of the enemy's works and his fighting qualities.
It is now generally admitted by those competent to judge, that our only hope of a successful charge lay in throwing a tremend-

FLORENCE
SEWING MACHINE.
OVER THE POST OFFICE.
THERE is nothing so much sought for by the public as a practical Sewing Machine, one that is Simple, Strong & Reliable.
One that will run for years without the annoyance of being out of repair; one that will sew all kinds of material; also that makes the stitch as you want it, alike on both sides of the fabric; such are the machines of the
FLORENCE SEWING MACHINE COMPANY.
Who take pains in placing their Machines before the public and unobtrusively say they are the best in the world, and openly and publicly challenge machines of any make and all manufacturers to do as large a range of work as can easily be done on one of these machines. They make FOUR DIFFERENT STITCHES,
and have all the advantage of a reversible feed motion,
which enables the work to be done in either direction,
with making all the four stitches, can be done whilst the machine is in motion; the saving of time in stopping to change the length of stitch, is obviated by this machine.
Any correspondence regarding our Machines will be promptly answered. Enclose a Letter Stamp and we will send circular and sample of work by return mail.

GENERAL ORDER No. 1.
TO THE PEOPLE OF WISCONSIN.
The best bought, best selected, best assorted and most extensive stock of
DRY GOODS
ever offered in Janesville, is now open to PUBLIC INSPECTION
at the Great Mart of McKee & Bro.
WE have taken advantage of the recent unparalleled fall in the price of gold, Mr. McKee having received almost exclusively in New York for the past three months, was on hand and BOUGHT LARGELY
of first class importers, who, under the influence of the panic,
Sacrificed Many Desirable Goods
at 50 cents on the dollar of the price ruling one week previous. The public is aware that the cause of the great advance in the price of Imported Goods was the enormous premium on gold, to buy exchange and pay duties; that having declined from 74 to 85 per cent, or about 30 per cent on former rate, and we have been on the spot when it took place, went in for Files of Goods,
the purchase of one of which would double up the resource of many of the so-called Merchants who Blow, Hurrah and Clap their hands before the public but believe that sensation advertisements are played out, and that it is necessary to inform the public that those who are compelled to buy goods
in small lot, and live at it were from hand to mouth cannot pretend to COMPETE WITH US!
In proof of which we offer the following:
200 yds full yd wide New M. Sheetings, 300 yd. 2d 200 yds Portmouth unbleached factory, 300 yd. 2d
800 yds Spring Delaines, 300 yd. 2d
100 yds new cutting Delaines, 300 yd. 2d
300 yds Balmain Shirts, 4 yds wide, 1 1/2 yds long, $2.50
100 yds A. T. Stewart and Co. French Jacquards, $1.50
200 yds Fine French organdies at 50c per yd.
These were bought under peculiar circumstances, the same quality having been sold at wholesale last week in New York at 40c per yd. None of the above were sold to neighboring speculators; our legitimate trade alone supplied.
Our purchases of nearly a year ago were so enormous that we still

DAILY GAZETTE.

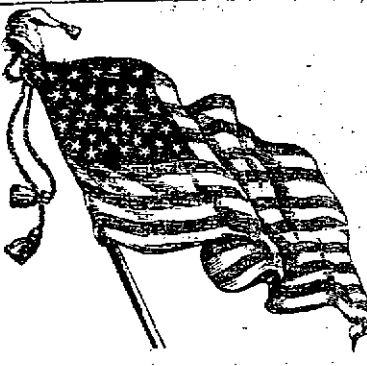

The Siege of Vicksburg.

We find in the St. Louis Democrat a letter from a gentleman just returned from Vicksburg, which conveys as vivid an idea of the situation as anything that we have seen. We will therefore extract largely:

WHY GRANT HAS NOT TAKEN VICKSBURG.

I have been astonished since my return to hear persons complaining that Grant is doing nothing. They seem to imagine that Vicksburg is to come down like Jericho, at a flourish of trumpets. The truth is, the army could hardly be more active or on the spot.

On the 22d of May, in order to silence the cry, Grant hurried the whole column of the army upon those broadworks, and it broke as the surge breaks on the rock. The army has now simply changed its tactics. It has for the time dropped the bayonet and taken up the spade. In the double gloom of the night and the mine, the army is creeping stealthily forward. A few evenings since, in company with an officer of Gen. Benton's staff, I threaded the length of one of these approaches. From previous accounts I had imagined them like those of Leyden, as deep as the eye could see, and ending in a single column of the army upon those broadworks, and it broke as the surge breaks on the rock. The army has now simply changed its tactics. It has for the time dropped the bayonet and taken up the spade. In the double gloom of the night and the mine, the army is creeping stealthily forward. Forever float that standard sheet—
Where breathes the foe but falls before us?
With Freedom's soil beneath our feet,
And Freedom's banner streaming o'er us!

The Contrast.

Read Major Britton's letter. See what our brave soldiers have endured in the splendid campaign before Vicksburg. Without tents, sometimes on quarter racks, long marches amid intense heat, without change of clothing for many weeks, some of them barefooted and fighting the rebels every day. They endure all this cheerfully to conquer a peace and save the country from anarchy. Compare these glorious men with those in our midst plotting for the rebels, or indirectly giving them aid and comfort! The contrast could not be greater if Washington and Arnold stood face to face. Human nature can endure much, but it at last gives way under continued pressure, and we to the secessionists in the north when the flood of wrath from an indignant people comes. Let every man purge disloyalty from his bosom that he may be found on that day on the right side. It cannot always be that these things will be permitted. The crisis will come, when it will be determined, clearly, on which side every man stands. Those who most nearly come up to the standard of the heroes of Vicksburg, ready to endure all and risk all for their country, even their lives, will be counted the most loyal and true, while the others will retreat the hills and mountains to fall on them for protection.

From the Thirty-Third Regiment.

LET WING GRANT'S ARMY, BEAR OF VICKSBURG, June 12, 1863.

Editors Gazette:—My facilities for writing are small and oblige me to use the pencil. Knowing how anxious our friends at home are to hear from us, even a line may prove of interest, though written on condensed paper and forwarded in a secesh envelope. We have been in this immediate vicinity eight days, and on duty about one half the time. The health of the whole army is excellent, and though Vicksburg is not ours, all feel confident of ultimate success. There is probably no position on the continent which nature has done more to render impregnable than this, and it has been fittingly crowned the Gibraltar of America. The fortifications enclose a series of hills, on each of which a battery is planted so that the defence is very formidable. The great work that encloses the whole, is a masterpiece of engineering, composed of stone and cotton covered with earth ten feet in height, approachable only across a moat or ditch twelve feet deep and twenty feet wide. Our forces attempted to scale the works a week ago last Friday, but were repulsed with great loss. We are now undermining them and planting heavy guns to command the town. The bombardment is kept up by the mortar fleet and when the land batteries are in position the great ball will open. The enemy are thoroughly invested, and cannot be reinforced, as all points where such interference might approach are well defended. Prisoners say that rations are scarce in Vicksburg and that the ammunition is well high expended. We have not been in action yet, save sharpshooter skirmishing, and have had but one man wounded. The rebel pickets are very communicative and sometimes enter into truces with our boys not to fire for a certain time, during which they will try to barter tobacco for coffee, etc. The truce having ended, each man returns to his tree and the firing commences. The majority of them are not very anxious to fight, and express themselves as being heartily sick of the war. We were ordered on coming down to leave all our camp equipment, baggage, etc., at Herman's Landing, so that we are in the field without tents or conveniences of any kind—not even a change of clothing. I have my doubts about this ever reaching you, but it may. When opportunity offers I will give you a detailed account of the fight of Vicksburg. Direct to Cairo as heretofore.

RAILROAD DECISION IN THE UNITED STATES COURT.—Judge Miller, of the United States court, rendered his decision this morning upon the petition of the Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company, for actual possession of the La Crosse road. The decision was to the effect that the Milwaukee & St. Paul company be given possession of all the working railroad property, station depots, &c., of the entire road from Milwaukee to La Crosse, and that the connection with the eastern division be to receive and disburse the earnings on that part of the road. The Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway Company are required to give a bond in the sum of $100,000 to faithfully keep an account of the earnings of the eastern division, and to pay the money over to the receiver.

The court also decided that the road from Milwaukee to La Crosse was an unit, and that the business could not be divided at Portage City over some other road to Milwaukee without the consent of the parties owning the eastern division. In case the Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway Company should purchase the eastern division, they could then run cars from La Crosse to Milwaukee, either over the eastern division or by way of Watertown, at their pleasure.

Correspondence of the Daily Gazette.

From the Life Eagle Regiment.

HAINES BLUFF, YAZOO RIVER, June 1st, 1863.

Editors Gazette:—When I wrote to you last week laying under the guns of the batteries at Vicksburg, after storming the works, but for the last six days we have been on an expedition to Mechanicsville, 20 miles from Yazoo City, along the country lying between the Yazoo and Black rivers. Some parts are very rich. A brigade from each division of McPherson's and Sherman's army corps accompanied the expedition, numbering in all about ten thousand men. The object was to protect our rear from a movement of Johnston. We met the enemy at Mechanicsville, and after slight skirmish in which we lost 16 killed and wounded, the enemy fled. Finding no strong force of the enemy, and remaining one night, we were ordered back along the valley. We were ordered to destroy all cotton marked G. S. A., all the mills, &c. The order was carried out. We burned an immense amount of cotton and corn, besides cotton gins and mills. For two days marching we were not out of sight of burning buildings and graineries. We brought off about 1000 head of cattle and as many mules, some of the finest I ever saw, loaded 200 wagons with cotton, and found lots of chickens and fresh meats of all kinds to use on the trip.

We have had hard times for the last 30 days, however many miles I could not tell, we have marched in that time; but by looking on the map you can see the route we traveled since we left Young's Point. We crossed the river at Grand Gulf, after marching through Louisiana, from Grand Gulf to the rear of Port Gibson, thence to Raymond, from Raymond to Mississippi Spring, then to Jackson; from Jackson, after being the first in and the last out, we marched to Black river, and, after beating the enemy there, we marched directly on Vicksburg, taking part at once in storming the works; meeting with a severe loss, but not a defeat, the particulars of which I suppose you have long been in this been made acquainted with.

We were at once ordered to move to Snyder's Bluffs. Thirty minutes after the order was given the brigade was in motion, marching all night. We remained at this place 12 hours, and received orders to move with other forces coming to our support, to hunt for Joe Johnston, and if found, to fight and whip him, and save our rear. We have traveled 80 miles over a broken country in the last five days, with the sun as hot as the hottest days you have in Wisconsin. The men have layed out without tents now for 30 nights, and marched or fought every day but two, have been on half rations, have not changed our shirts for four weeks, many of the men are barefooted, but we have met with such glorious success that but few have grumbled.

Such hardships as have been endured for the past month by this army, has no comparison in this war, but I want to ask you if we have not accomplished much, and have we not the thanks of a grateful country? Have you been called upon to put such news in print since this war commenced? Every man here seemed to think that all depended on him, and nobly have all done their duty in this campaign. It will take 40,000 men in our rear to raise the siege of Vicksburg. We have them, and no mistake. We are at present at Haines' Bluff, and if Johnston comes to the relief of Pemberton we will be the first to be hit, and he will find a very large hole in the hull of his rotten old bulk after he is brought to by the shock that he will receive after running against Mower's old brigade. The old eagle still lives and grows fat over the victories just accomplished. Our pickets captured five dispatch bearers from Pemberton to Johnston a few nights since, saying that the troops were on quarter rations; all their cattle and mules dying for the want of forage; that the shells from our guns had killed 90 women, and that unless he, Johnston, made all possible dispatch to help raise the siege, they would have to surrender. What a hell it must be for those in Vicksburg! Just imagine a line of batteries from a point above the city on the Mississippi river, to a point below, a line of about eight miles directly, a half circle in the rear, and all our mortar and gunboats in front, throwing in shell night and day for twelve days. The battery in our brigade in four days and nights threw 3,000 shot and shell into the rebel works. There are at least 30 brigades here, and some of them have two batteries. Then we have about 60 of the captured guns in position. I think we have as many as 210 field pieces in position, besides heavy siege batteries in the rear, and the navy in front. Confound the bombardment is kept up by night as well as day.

It has got to be so common to us that we scarcely notice the firing at all. There was an armistice for five hours on the 25th of May, to bury the dead. The men of both armies mingled together for that time in hunting for wounded and burying the dead. After the time was up, men that had just been covering together, were watching their chances to get a shot at each other's heads; such is war. We expect to have possession of the city soon. The troops are generally pretty healthy. We have new potatoes, and blackberries have been ripe for a month past. I will now close, as it is too late to be comfortable sitting in one position. My best wishes to all, hoping soon to see peace restored honorably.

I am yours, &c.,
W. B. BRITTON, 3th W. I. V.

About 4,000 rebel prisoners have recently arrived at Indianapolis, taken at the battle of Big Black river. They are in full keeping with their cause—hard. Indeed they look like an inferior order of beings. Were they black, even their own friends would not care for them. What an ornery set of negroes they are! They are at Camp Morton under guard of the 71st Indiana regiment.

Be compliant where you can. The best blade will still be most easy. The metal that is stiff is also brittle.

Last Night's Report.

CAIRO, June 12.

Special to the Chicago Journal.—The steamer St. Cloud is up from Vicksburg. She left there on Monday morning. There was a severe fight at Milliken's Bend on Saturday, one of the severest of the war, for the numbers engaged. The rebels, six thousand strong, under Henry McCullough, were formerly at Alexandria, La., but more recently from Richmond, La. They marched from the latter place in three columns—one on Young's Point, another on Milliken's Bend, and the third on Lake Providence.

The force that reached Milliken's Bend was about two thousand strong. Our force at that place was composed of a negro regiment of six hundred strong, with about two hundred white soldiers. When the rebels first made their appearance, the white troops fell back and the negroes followed. It was soon ascertained that they were surrounded, and must fight or surrender. The rebels proclaimed no quarter to the negroes, and the negroes proclaimed no quarter to them.

The fight was conducted with the energy of desperation by our forces, and they held the rebels at bay until a gunboat came to their assistance.

A gentleman who saw part of the fight, and who was on the battle-field after it was over, says the negroes fought like tigers—better, in fact, than their white officers, who, it is said, did not stay on the field. The colonel, particularly, is said to have skulked away in a disgraceful manner. I could not learn his name. This gentleman says we lost, in killed, negroes ninety-nine, white men, thirty. Our wounded number about 125. The list of killed is so large in consequence of many of the wounded being killed under the "so quarter" rule. Over 100 dead rebels were left on the field, and they took away several wagon loads of wounded.

At about the time the battle was over at Milliken's Bend, the rebels made their appearance near Young's Point, and all the citizens and transient persons were put under arms. No attack had been made when our informant left. The rebel force had not yet reached Lake Providence. We have heard of the fight at the rear of Vicksburg. Night before last, John Sparks, belonging to the 18th Illinois, while at home on furlough, six miles from Carbondale, Ill., was shot by secession sympathizers, in his own house. They called him to come out, and while adjusting his clothes to comply, he was shot through an open door. Several balls entered his body, and he expired almost immediately. Another Union man, named Emerson, died the same night, in the same neighborhood, from wounds received three days before. This is a complete reign of terror in Williamson county, and if Union men are not sustained, they will be driven from the country. The arrest of the leaders by the military authorities has exasperated the secessionists, and the release of the leaders has emboldened them. Affairs have reached a crisis in that locality.

New York, June 12. The steamer Corica from Havana, the 6th and Naahua the same day, has arrived. Reliable news of the occupation of Puebla reached Havana by the Naahua on steam. The reported furious attack on Tetumehron and the consequent capture of the city is untrue. The city was surrendered by the Mexican defenders, being without food or ammunition, having eaten even the artillery mules and cavalry horses. Ortega, on the 16th, offered to surrender on condition that his soldiers be allowed to carry their banners and the officers their side arms, and all to march to the city of Mexico, and to report to the supreme government. This was granted, except the latter. Ortega refused them to march to Orizaba, and there await in inactivity the close of the war.

On the 18th, Forey presented the officers a document to sign, declaring that they would not mix in the politics of the nation; that they will become neutral during the war; that they will not leave the limits to be assigned by the French general-in-chief, and that they will not communicate with any one without his consent. The officers received this with cries, "Long live Mexico!" "Death to Napoleon!" "Death to traitors!" then signed a protest that they were not allowed to sign the laws of the laws of the country, or by military honor.

Ortega, previous to the surrender, ordered the artillery to be broken up. President Juarez issued a proclamation, announcing the great disaster in the surrender of Puebla, and stating that the capital will not only be defended to the last extremity, but all places would be defended with vigor—that the nation will wage the war without ceasing, and all sacrifices against an odious army which is profaning its soil.

Vera Cruz advances reported the escape of Gen. Ortega, Llave, Mandoso, and eight more principal chiefs, over 300 minor officers, and 2,000 privates, from the French convoy, en route for Orizaba.

New York, June 12. The steamship Mississippi, from New Orleans, has arrived. Special dispatches from the New Orleans Era of the 6th, from Southwest Pass, 6th and 6th, say the French had taken possession of Puebla. It is said the French had arrested the American steamer "No. 1" near the mouth of the river. The Era of the 3d has an important order from Gen. Banks, to the effect that no interference is to be allowed with plantation property, and that articles heretofore taken are to be restored.

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 12. Gov. Curtin has assumed command of the department of the Susquehanna. He summons, for the defense of the state, all citizens between the ages of 18 and 60, to organize in an army corps, embracing cavalry, artillery and infantry, to serve during the pleasure of the President, or continuing as long as the war. When not required for active service to defend this department, they will be returned to their homes, subject to the call of the commanding general.

Boston, June 10. Arrived, steamers Guide and George Peabody, with the 4th Massachusetts regiment from Newbern, North Carolina.

Boston, June 10. Assistant Secretary of the Navy Fox states that the whole number of vessels captured or destroyed by the blockading fleet, up to June 1st, is eight hundred and fifty-five.

CAIRO, June 12. A passenger upon the steamer Dunleith says there was a report in Memphis, brought up by the steamer Niagara, from Vicksburg, that on Monday last the rebel garrison within the works endeavored to break out, but after some fighting, they were driven back with loss. I have no particulars.

CAIRO, June 12. Special to Chicago Tribune.—The steamer Dunleith, Capt. Wilson, arrived this afternoon, direct from Vicksburg, on Sunday, 7th inst., bringing Memphis dates to the 10th.

These papers contain nothing of any particular interest.

From an officer of the Dunleith I learn the following, regarding something of the battle which came off at Milliken's Bend on the afternoon of Saturday last, and the forenoon of Sunday, of the present week. From the highly intelligent source whence it comes we think it can be relied upon as generally correct, though the details when received may vary somewhat from the facts as known when my informant left.

It would appear that on Saturday last the federal force at Milliken's Bend consisted of about 717 troops, and 800 negro volunteers—some fifteen or sixteen hundred in all.

On Saturday evening an alarm was brought to the commander of the post that a large force of rebels, some three thousand strong, were outside the works, at no great distance, marching upon the fortifications. The federal commander immediately sent out his cavalry to detain the rebels, and the colored troops for reserves in case the rebels failed to fall back.

It turned out that it was well that this precaution was taken, for after engaging the enemy, and finding that we were about to be overpowered, our cavalry did fall back, and joined the colored infantry, when a battle took place, which waged on both sides with terrific fury. The rebels pressed still forward, and the white and black troops opposed them with all their strength.

Our troops had no artillery, and the rebels had, yet after a struggle of some hours, the confederates were driven off, leaving a great number of the rebels wounded.

Their retreat was not followed up by our men, they being so much exhausted, but a retreat was beat to the federal works, and preparations made for defense.

In the evening, the steamer St. Cloud came up from below, and learning the bad state of affairs, returned for reinforcements of artillery and a gunboat, both of which were started up.

The gunboat Choctaw arrived upon the spot early Sunday morning, to find the rebels had retired. During the night they had busied themselves in gathering a large number of mules together, and when day broke, they started them forward, using them as a means of protection, while they were followed closely behind. They were promptly met by our troops—this time, behind their breastworks.

Gradually the rebels moved their line, sacrificing their mules to rifle shots, and opened upon our works with rifles, shot-guns and artillery. They had not far to go, when the gunboat Choctaw came in for her share in the fight, using her heavy guns with effect, charged with shell.

An unfortunate shot from the Choctaw is said to have killed several members of the negro regiment. It was owing to the fate of the steamer not being able to elevate her guns sufficiently to fire above the line to reach the enemy, but this was remedied, and for a few hours the fight continued, when the Choctaw succeeded in getting such excellent range and sent such a storm of shot and shell into the rebel ranks, that after being once or twice rallied, they broke in disorder and fled, this time taking off their dead and wounded.

It was impossible for my informant to learn the extent of our own loss, but it must have been considerable. About 100 colored men fell. The rebel loss was also considerable, and up to a late hour on Monday, when the steamer Niagara left for Memphis, they had not returned to renew the attack, and it is presumed that they do so that sufficient reinforcements of artillery have been forwarded to the Bend to give them a sudden and effectual quietness.

New York, June 12. Cincinnati papers contain a statement that the sheriff of Knox county, Ohio, refused to allow the jail of that county to be used for the confinement of deserters.

Provost Marshal Bennett reports that the enrolling officer is not allowed to continue his labors in Harrison township—threatening to shoot him and take him out of the township.

CARBONATE, O., June 11. The delegates returning from the white feather convention, were met at the depot by a few soldiers of the 3d Ohio, who knocked down every man who mentioned the name of Vallandigham favorably.

To-Day's Report.

(Reported Exclusively for the Daily Gazette.)

MORNING DISPATCHES.

New York, June 12. Nassau papers are again indignant because the gunboat Rhode Island had chased the steamers Margaret and Jesse, and the schooner S. J. Burdett, and the limits of maritime law, firing a full broadside at one of them, which plowed up the ground near dwellings on the shore, and wounded two fishermen. Dangerous explosive war weapons shipped from Nassau for Charleston on the former were thrown overboard, by order of the captain, near Charleston. The concussion produced by its fall into the water exploded it, and the vessel was badly damaged and Captain Wilson nearly killed.

Advices from New Orleans state that Gen. Sherman is better and the probability is not only his life but his leg will be saved, though he will be lame for life.

Skirmishing is going on constantly at Port Hudson. Our forces are busily constructing batteries along the entire line, which would be complete and opened against the enemy on the 6th. The opinion was the rebels could not hold out 24 hours thereafter. Deserters say there is but a small force in Port Hudson.

Washington, June 12. Special to Tribune.—Five deserters who came within our lines on the Rappahannock, yesterday, report Gen. Lee marching with his whole force up the river, a statement which is confirmed by other evidences. The observations of army aramants somewhat hazardous in their duty, one who went up in a balloon near the Warrenton House this a. m., was admonished to descend by the rebels, who opened a brick fire upon the balloon with shells. With this exception all was quiet along the front up to two miles above Banks' Ford, this morning.

The Union nominees for governor of Ohio will probably be Gov. Tod, the present incumbent, or Ex-Congressman John A. Bingham.

The statement that Admiral Farragut has asked to be relieved and is to be succeeded by Admiral Dahlgren, is utterly without foundation. Farragut has not made the request alleged, nor would the department be willing to spare him from active duties.

THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, June 12. Special to Herald.—Affairs remain unchanged across the river below Fredericksburg. A little picket firing is indulged in, and occasionally artillery open, but without effect; and from the upper forces we have no news of importance. All feel confident that we can hold our position against any force the enemy can bring upon us.

No news from Vicksburg, whatever.

All quiet on the Rappahannock.

All in the military district of Iowa, under command of Maj. Gen. Babcock, has been constituted so as to include all the territory within the state of Iowa, except the village of Sioux City, and put under command of Brig. Gen. B. S. CINCINNATI, June 13. The Commercial had a dispatch from Indianapolis, yesterday, stating that the murderers of Marshal Stevens have been arrested and brought there. A company of cavalry has been sent to Jefferson county, Indiana, to aid in the enrollment.

Memphis, June 12. The Mississippiian gives the details of the fight at Port Hudson, stating that Kirby Smith drove Banks' forces in confusion, the latter leaving their dead and wounded on the field, and Smith still pursuing Banks on the 5th.

The following is from Richmond papers of the 11th: JACKSON, June 9.—Scouts report federal pickets around Vicksburg ten miles deep, and all approaches closely guarded. Grant communicates with the fleet by signals night and day, and is thought to be making some movement. The mortar boats are firing all night at intervals of two seconds. Nothing from Port Hudson. A dispatch from Lee, Culpepper 9th, states that Stuart drove the federals back that day, after hard fighting, lasting all day.

Papers state Fitzhugh Lee was severely wounded, and Col. Williams, of the North Carolina cavalry, Col. Hampton, brother of Waldo Hampton, and Capt. Farley, of Stuart's staff, were killed on the 9th. It also admits a loss of 200 men.

WASHINGTON, June 13. The 13th Pennsylvania cavalry and 87th Pennsylvania infantry had a skirmish with some 400 rebel cavalry, yesterday, near Middletown, Pennsylvania. Eight rebels were killed, a number wounded and thirty-seven captured.

The Fighting Before Port Hudson.—A Letter from the Late Col. Bean, 4th Wisconsin.

A correspondent of the N. Y. Herald, writing from New Orleans on the 1st inst., says it is almost impossible to get at any information concerning the fighting at Port Hudson on the 27th ult. The secessionists construed into a defeat of the federals, but the correspondent was confident at the time of writing, that we had been victorious. After mentioning the fact of General T. W. Sherman being wounded he adds:

As an illustration of how desperate the fighting was, and how much our gallant fellows had to encounter, I give a copy of a letter written by the lamented Col. Bean, of the 4th Wisconsin, who fell on the 28th. His description is in regard to the fight of the 27th. He says:

"I will give you the first day of the battle of Port Hudson. It is the morning of the second day on which I write. I came off the field last night after the battle had ceased, crippled so that I was just able to make my way a few rods to a horse. I lamed myself by some violent exertion, jump or fall in the abatis, when or how I don't recall, so that my leg is stiff and it cannot walk."

I wrote you from Simonsport when I received a letter from you, then crossed that place to Bayou Sara, then crossed the river and marched here. Here we found ourselves in a dense southern forest, one mile and a half through, our pickets and the enemy's meeting midway. The day before we had driven them so far in, losing one hundred men killed and wounded.

On the further edge of the forest there are a series of deep ravines, beyond high bluffs. On these bluffs the enemy's forts are built strong redoubts flanking each other; covered and connected by rifle pits. It is a cleared space in front of the fort of six to ten hundred yards. The trees have been felled so as to form a formidable abatis. Our negro regiments had cut a road through the forest for our artillery as far as our pickets extended.

"At four o'clock in the morning we marched in line, driving the enemy's pickets, and in a few moments more falling on their infantry in rifle-pits this side of their abatis, driving them through it over into their forts. When we commenced the march we were in three lines, and two were in front of the third. When we got through it I was in front of the column. We pressed down through the abatis and halted on a crest of hills within near rifle shot of the breastworks. Of course when we got through there was the most incredible confusion, and it was the diligent work of hours to bring the regiments together and in line again. The abatis and woods were filled with stragglers, towards and men looking for their regiments. I was in the confusion, and my horse was killed, and I was separated from my comrades, and I was alone, separated from their comrades, organized and in position, and, as I said before, in the very front of the whole army. Of course it took time to make our way through the abatis, and we were under the murderous fire of ten or twelve cannon and of all the infantry in the rifle-pits. I cannot give any description of this fire, because, as at Baton Rouge, I was perfectly unconscious of it, and did not hear a cannon ball or a rifle shot on every side of me. My anxiety to press my regiment forward and to keep it in order wholly absorbed me. But during those few fatal moments in which we were crawling over and under the felled trees and through branches, some of my best men fell."

"Capt. Craig was hit with a musket ball, not mortally, I hope, and the poor fellow lay there among the trees bleeding like a dog, laughing at his wound and cheering on his men. Captain Herron had his leg knocked off. It is a questionable thing, and life is questionable, and he lies on his bed crying, now for his leg and now that he did not get into the forts. Lieut. Pierce, of the same company, was shot in the arm, but seemed quite consoled when I told him the regiment was ahead of everything."

Lieut. Chittenden was hit in the breast; how badly I do not know. Our whole loss during the day was about 70 killed and wounded, and 390 was all I took on the field."

"Having passed the worst abatis, and finding shelter for the men under the crest of the hill, I halted, and in half an hour the men drove away the gunners from their pieces, and silenced every cannon but one—that being out of range—nor dare a man of the rebels show his head above the breastworks. The number of their killed and wounded must have been great before they abandoned their guns."

"I have just been reading in the Herald of the 7th of the battle of Chancellorsville, and of the attack made on Saturday by the rebels on Sykes' division of regulars, the rebels outnumbering them three to one of the terrible fire and thinned ranks, and 'courage beyond comprehension of our men' in withstanding the fierce attack; and no doubt it was a fine thing; but the whole division, it states, lost only 150 men, while my single regiment lost half that number in the same time, and their spirit, dash and good humor every moment. My admiration for my men is beyond bounds."

The above exceedingly interesting letter was found in the colonel's portfolio, and was unfinished. It gives a better idea of the severity of the fight than any other account we have, and shows how much our forces had to encounter.

The commands of Generals Heron and Vandever—some 12,000 men in all—which have been for some months operating in Missouri, have left for Vicksburg, to reinforce Gen. Grant. These troops are principally composed of Iowa and Missouri regiments, and are among the very best in the service.
